Statistics show that black males are disproportionately getting in trouble and being suspended from the nation's school systems. Based on three years of participant observation research at an elementary school, Bad Boys offers a richly textured account of daily interactions between teachers and students to understand this serious problem. Ann Arnett Ferguson demonstrates how a group of eleven- and twelve-year-old males are identified by school personnel as "bound for jail" and how the youth construct a sense of self under such adverse circumstances. The author focuses on the perspective and voices of pre-adolescent African American boys. How does it feel to be labeled "unsalvageable" by your teacher? How does one endure school when the educators predict one's future as "a jail cell with your name on it?" Through interviews and participation with these youth in classrooms, playgrounds, movie theaters, and video arcades, the author explores what "getting into trouble" means for the boys themselves. She argues that rather than simply internalizing these labels, the boys look critically at schooling as they dispute and evaluate the meaning and motivation behind the labels that have been attached to them.

Supplementing the perspectives of the boys with interviews with teachers, principals, truant officers, and relatives of the students, the author constructs a disturbing picture of how educators' beliefs in a "natural difference" of black children and the "criminal inclination" of black males shapes decisions that disproportionately single out black males as being "at risk" for failure and punishment. ? Bad Boys is a powerful challenge to prevailing views on the problem of black males in our schools today. It will be of interest to educators, parents, and youth, and to all professionals and students in the fields of African-American studies, childhood studies, gender studies, juvenile studies, social work, and sociology, as well as anyone who is concerned about the way our schools are shaping the next generation of African American boys.

"Vlog star Renard Grant has nothing to prove: he's got a pretty face, chiseled body, and two million adoring video subscribers. Plus the scars on his chest and a prescription for testosterone. Because Ren is transgender: assigned female at birth, living now as male. He films his transition and shares it bravely with the world; his fans love his honesty and positivity. But Ren has been living a double life. Off-camera, he's Cane, the muscle-bound enforcer for social justice vigilante group Black Iris. As Cane, he lets his dark side loose. Hurts those who prey on the disempowered. Indulges in the ugly side of masculinity. And his new partner, Tamsin Baylor, is a girl as rough and relentless as him. Together, they terrorize the trolls into silence. But when a routine Black Iris job goes south, Ren is put in the crosshairs. Someone is out to ruin his life. He's a bad boy, they say, guilty of what he punishes others for. Just like every other guy: at heart, he's a monster, too. Now Ren's got everything to prove. He has to clear his name, and show the world he's a good man. But that requires facing demons he's locked away for years. And it might mean discovering he's not such a good guy after all."--Dust jacket flap.

Namanya Adam Kejadian aneh muncul ketika aku bertemu dengannya. Saat berada di bus saat hujan deras waktu itu. Dia dua belas tahun lebih tua dariku. Aku dengar, dia seorang duda. Istrinya kabur bersama dengan laki-laki lain dan hanya menginginkan hartanya. Tapi ada yang bilang bahwa istrinya sudah meninggal. Ada juga yang mengatakan bahwa istrinya tiba-tiba menghilang dan tidak pernah pulang. Banyak spekulasi-spekulasi yang terus beredar, hingga membuat bulu kudukku meremang saat bersamanya. Aku hanya tinggal bersama dengan nenek. Di sebuah kompleks perumahan, di lingkungan yang teduh, dengan rumah yang berjejer rapi di sini. Tapi ketenanganku tiba-tiba sirna, saat dia pindah bersebelahan dengan rumahku. Tidak! Dia mencoba mendekatiku. Sejak kedatangannya ke sini, aku sering bermimpi-mimpi erotis tentang dirinya. Tubuh ini sering tiba-tiba panas oleh sesuatu hal yang tidak aku mengerti selama ini. Aku seperti dijebak. Seperti dihipnotis untuk selalu bersamanya. Sering kali aku ingin menjauh, tetapi anehnya, kenapa aku selalu ingin tetap tinggal?

She's way too innocent for me and I know it—and I should leave it that. If I knew what was good for me I would. But fu%$ it. I rarely go with what's good for me, which is why I'm sitting on a goddamn bar stool when I should be back at Penn State, grading papers. I don't normally stay for a drink after a gig—and I really need to give this shit up—but tonight, I don't know, there's just something about the birthday girl that's throwing me off. I should leave. I'm a psych professor, for Christ's sakes. Ever hear of code of conduct? Yeah, well I'm violating every rule I promised to uphold—which is why I can't act on my urges, right? Then again, they don't call me Professor Bad Boy because I'm...you know...good.

There are many reason why Western men turn to Eastern religion—searching for inner truth, lost love, loneliness, fleeing the law, hopelessness, alcoholism. Some travel halfway around the world in an attempt to overcome their particular dissoluteness, only to realize that improving yourself is like polishing air. What they eventually discover, nevertheless, is one of the Buddha's most significant lessons: enlightenment comes to those whose singular focus is on helping others less fortunate. Six stories, six gay men trudging down the road to enlightenment. What they each find is the last thing in the world they expected.
