Ancient myths describe an eclipse as the Sun or Moon being swallowed by a dragon. Since an eclipse could only occur near the lunar nodes, these became the head and tail of the dragon. Older references and eastern astrology still call the Moon's North Node the Dragon's Head and the South Node the Dragon's Tail. The Node Book goes beyond detailed information about the Moon's Nodes in signs and houses. Also included are chapters focused on the planetary nodes of Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Pluto, and the nodes of the four main asteroids: Ceres, Vesta, Juno, and Pallas. Extensive tables and directions for their use make it easy to find the nodes for the planets and asteroids.

Now back in print, a revised and expanded edition of the classic text that guides all levels of astrologers on the essential elements of predictive astrology.

Whether you are a step-parent or step-child, Gayle Geffner offers astrological insight and personal wisdom while demonstrating how to grow into a happy and loving family. Intermediate and advanced astrologers will find the information and synastry methods used in this book incredibly valuable. Beginners and non-astrologers will also benefit from the book when used in conjunction with general introductory astrology books. Using an innovative approach as a viable way for step-families to come together and bond, Gayle demonstrates these concepts through numerous examples, including the British royal family: synastry between step-parents and step-children; astrological timing; retrograde planets; secondary progressions; lunar nodes; dwads; the Moon; and Saturn. Known as the "practical astrologer," Gayle Geffner deals with the day-to-day situations that affect all of us. This in-depth work describes the system of Carteret, how you receive a life purpose, the northern Moon node, from the celestial guides before you get on the earthly plane, and how this message works throughout your life in a sequence of 7 year cycles. Your life purpose is a result of your past life experiences, the southern Moon node. In your youth you get disappointed in your life purpose and abandon it. For two 7 year cycles you trust on your southern Moon node qualities to keep your head up. After that and after you cracked Pluto you start to live up to your original life purpose again. Together with your divine intuition, the black Moon Lilith, everyone is able to reach completeness for eternity. The Moon's nodes are explained in a very practical way -in the houses and in conjunction aspect- so that everyone can discern their own life destination and the phase they are in. This book is full of information you cannot find from other sources, and will be of interest to beginners and practicing astrologers alike. It was written after 15 years of investigation and experience. Sebastian van Wingerden describes a lot of past life session and angels experiences in his rich practice of hypnotherapist to illustrate the working of the Moon nodes. The Moon's north node in the horoscope is a powerful indicator of our life purpose. This book provides a fascinating background story for the life path in the natal chart. The north node in each of the 12 houses is described in detail with case histories from reincarnation sessions with actual clients. More than 200 pages are devoted to the northern Moon node in the houses. The next nearly 100 pages give interpretations for the planets Mercury through Pluto and the luminaries (the Sun and Moon) when in conjunction with the northern Moon node. Conjunctions are the most powerful aspects in any chart and are the simplest aspects for a beginner to identify. The introductory chapters of this book are an added bonus. The chart reading system of French philosopher Jean Carteret is described in detail.

Carteret proposed the use of six spiritual points which together help to delineate the soul's purpose on Earth. Carteret is not known to have written down any of his ideas. The Moon's nodes and the Black Moon Lilith are included among Carteret's six spiritual points. Through hypnotic regression of clients, Wingerden gained great insight into the soul's journey between lives and how each lifetime is arranged to obtain specific benefits. The first 100 pages of this book are devoted to describing how reincarnation works. Wingerden goes into the timeline calculations for the entire lifespan as defined by the progressive new and full moons. The concept of cracking Pluto is also mentioned as part of Carteret's system of interpretation. This portion of the book will be of greater interest to the professional astrologer as it uses more technically-advanced methods. One of the most fascinating features of this book is the detailed stories of past lives which Wingerden has uncovered during client sessions using hypnotic regression techniques. Possibly the most controversial idea presented by Wingerden concerns retrograde Mercury and reincarnation refusal. This portion of the book highlights the long-term effects that severe abuse and trauma can have on the evolving soul. This book about the northern Moon node is the foundation of Wingerden's trilogy, which also includes a book about cracking Pluto and another about the Black Moon Lilith. Together these three books expose Carteret's astrological system in a way that is not easily found elsewhere. Wingerden's trilogy provides a solid foundation for an in-depth psychological reading of any birth chart. In the year 2017 he has published his book Cracking Pluto and in the year 2018 his book about the black Moon Lilith will shine its light to complete his trilogy about the system of Carteret. This workbook is designed for the BEGINNING Astrology student of all ages. This Easy-to-Follow workbook will explain to you Why You are the Way You are! Science of Astrology: X-rays of The Divine has been written to provide readers with a general foundation in astrology and to address subject matter which is either absent or given insufficient coverage elsewhere; meanwhile explanations of rulership, exaltation and debility are excluded here, not least because the more elaborate parts of these systems seem to have been established rather arbitrarily. An understanding all of the technical explanations in this book is not required to have a good understanding of astrology; at the same time the mathematics used to illustrate physical laws here is not exhaustive. In Science of Astrology: X-rays of The Divine, the traditional system of horoscope construction is acknowledged and explained; however a new system of horoscope construction is introduced – one which represents the ecliptic in the form it takes independently of the Earth's daily motion, at the same time as accommodating the season and standpoint of the observation. According to the new system, a new system of house distribution has been devised and ascendant and descendant points are given to the Moon. The new system, expounded in the chapter Mapping the Zodiac is intended to exist alongside the traditional system; however for simplicity it is used independently throughout the book. Other original subject matter in this book includes the incorporation of childhood location changes into the horoscope and the role of orbital resonance in informing planetary aspects. Science of Astrology: X-rays of The Divine begins with an explanation of the basic physical laws of the solar system which is intended to help enthusiasts adopt a more scientific approach to the study of astrology; the research presented towards the end of the book is intended to impress upon sceptics the value of the horoscope as a signifier of natural phenomena. Although the ephemeral conditions of meteor and extreme weather events are notable for their singularity rather than for any features which can be specifically attributed to the phenomena they accompany, there are certain astrological features which are distinctly recognisable among recorded cases of earthquake activity and it is possible that astrology will eventually form a part of preventative strategies in this field. Research is also presented which concerns the relationship between IQ and the planet Mercury. Just as for disciples of psychology or genetics the ardent practitioner of astrology is prone to adopting a two-dimensional view of his or her subject; as the practitioner become more calculating, they also become less amenable to other manifestations of truth. Clearly, to understand human nature and to render a true service to humanity, the practitioner must adopt a holistic view. The book is named Science of Astrology: X-rays of The Divine because just as how an x-ray reveals the skeleton of an organism, so astrology reveals the bare outline of God's design. And just as how too much exposure to x-rays imperils the health of the organism, so can too great a study of this outline make the practitioner oblivious to the manifestations of the living God – that which exists beyond the dead indices of the celestial bodies. Hermes Trismegistus recognised the relationship between terrestrial events and the configuration of celestial objects and sought to render certain influences more enduring by soliciting their investment in inanimate objects. These objects were then assumed to promulgate the conditions extant at their inception. Part of Science of Astrology: X-rays of the Divine is concerned with the establishment of rituals, or active prayers, designed to ameliorate or relieve constitutional weakness or tension. Illness often has its origin in bad habits so by staging a ritual for a moment which is fortuitous to the individual, the individual can be emboldened to enact the necessary abnegation. If a ritual, be it direct naturopathic intervention or abstention from unhealthy practices, is staged to coincide with ephemeral conditions which offer reinforcement or stability to weaker or unstable elements of the constitution – upon interaction with the nativity, the ritual becomes as a talisman and reinforces the assimilation of the lesson prefigured by the ritual. Of course, the moment will be special whether or not it is deliberately ascribed ritual significance, but by consciously assigning an appropriate ritual to a fortuitous moment, the exertions of the intellect can be aligned to the exertions of the will.

Practicing Western astrologer Agneta Borstein uses an East-West astrological approach to the lunar nodes, their role in synastry, and their importance in the process of the evolving soul. In addition, her familiarity with the Vedic system and its mythology brings a unique perspective to her interpretation of the nodes. This is a revised and expanded edition of The Moon's Nodes. A Churning Process of the Soul first published in 2004 expands on the nodes in synastry and their roles in our relationships. It presents the Hindu myths related to the nodes with an emphasis on the goddesses as consorts to the male deities and how their stories connect to the Lunar nodes. Borstein presents the fundamental facts about the Moon's Nodes and includes a discussion of the True and Mean Node and information on the nodal cycle in transit, natal signs and houses of the nodes and their meaning, especially in how to move from the wounded soul, represented by the South Node, to higher consciousness, represented by the North Node. Includes a fascinating synastry study of Angelina, our modern day goddess, and her consort Brad Pitt with an interpretation of the ties that knot them together.

One of eight volumes in the Hubers' well-known series of books on astrological psychology. Moon Node Astrology combines depth psychology, astrology and reincarnation to bring a new focus on the shadow personality and the evolutionary process of the individual. Explains the scientific background and the psychological approach used with the nodes and the moon node chart. Also covers the relationship with esotericism and the ideas of Alice Bailey, explaining how earlier lives are shown in the aspect structure and house positions of planets in the nodal chart. Examples are given of working with the 'three charts' - nodal, natal and house - in helping to understand where the client has come from, where they are now, and where they are going. First published in English in 1995.

Complete, concise, informative and highly intelligent.

Modern Astrology classifies the Dragon's Head and Tail as the South and North Nodes of The Moon. The North Node of The Moon is positive energy, a form of Wheel of Fortune, pushing the soul towards a new self-realization and sure happiness. The Chinese astrologers refer to the Moon's Nodes as the Dragon's Head and Tail and give it tremendous attention in the natal chart. The South Node of the Moon is negative energy that is a form of karmic residue, dragging the soul toward his past accomplishments, inner fears and weaknesses. This build up of previous incarnations must be eliminated, and a chance therefore is given to you by the 'Great Designer' to experience new experiences and growth. Armed with such powerful knowledge, one is thus able to establish emotional, financial and spiritual stability.
